I believe it is time to settle this anti trust case in favor of Microsoft who should be free to innovate so that we can move into the future. I don't believe Microsoft has hurt anyone who purchased software to use for business or pleasure. A computer today is considered old at 3 years and this case has gone on far longer than that and is costing the public a great deal of money. Money is what it is all about as far as the states and Microsoft competitors are concerned. They not only want Microsoft's money they want the tax payers to pay the court costs for as long as possible. Wrap up this case and let us get on with our lives and the right to innovate.
